DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1, 5, 10-11, 17-19, 23, 27-31 and 35-38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gould et al (PGPUB no. 2004/0106404 A1).

As per claims 1, 5, 10-11, 17-19, 23, 27 and 35-38, the claimed limitations have been met by the Gould et al reference for the reasons set forth in the last office with the exception of using either an ADS-B receiver or a UAT datalink receiver to receive the radio signals as amended in the amendment. However, as admitted by applicant on page 5 of the amendment, at the time of his invention, both the ADS-B and UAT datalink receivers were already commonly equipped on commercial aircraft including the one shown in the Gould et al reference. Although, the Gould et al reference does not specifically teach receiving the signals containing the software updates using either the ADS-B or UAT datalink receiver as now claimed. Nevertheless, it would have been readily apparent for one skilled in the art that the type of receiver uses to receive the transmitted signals is merely dictated by the nature of the transmitted signals. The well known ADS-B or UAT datalink receiver commonly equipped in the Gould et al system would have been used in the event that the signals containing the software updates are in either the ADS-B or UAT format.

Art Unit: 3661

As to the claimed feature of either providing an authorization code to an avionics device that allows the avionics device to receive the update information or providing an authorization code to the device that allows the remote transmitter to transmit the update information in claims 28-31, it would have been well recognized by one skilled in the art that the authorized configuration identity file as disclosed on pages 4-5 and item 166, figure 9 of the Gould et al reference, which is used to compare with the actual configuration identity in order to permit the updating of the software information, essentially performs the same function of the claimed authorization code needed to either permit the transmitting or receiving of the update information.

3. Claims 1-42 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Robinson et al (patent no. 6381538) in view of Gould et al (PGPUB no. 2004/0106404 A1).

As per claims 1-42, the reasons for the rejection based upon the combined teachings of Robinson et al and Gould et al as set forth in the last office action is maintained and incorporated herein by reference.

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-42 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

5. The references are cited to show the ADS-B and UAT receivers are well known in the art. Applicant(s) should consider them carefully when responding to the current office action.

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a).

Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

Art Unit: 3661

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
